

HUGE savings for DC-Area Educators!

Thanks to a generous donor, PANIM is able to offer a special DC-area rate for its renowned annual National Educators' Institute for Jewish Service-Learning.

For ONLY $36* local educators can participate in this five-day, intensive training in Jewish Service-Learning.

REGISTER NOW. Spaces underwritten for this low rate are limited and applications will be accepted on a rolling basis.

The National Educators' Institute for Jewish Service-Learning

Join educators from around the country in a week-long training designed to prepare you to create and teach Jewish service-learning programs in your community.

All participants will receive a copy of Just, the newest Jewish service-learning resource!

Best Practices

- What works in formal education? informal education? family education?
- How can institutions best reach out to teens? children? adults?
- What are the elements of the most successful service-learning programs in the country?

Jewish Text Study

- Learn the top 10 texts that every Jewish service-learning professional should have at his/her fingertips
- Discover how to make Jewish values come alive through service.
- Explore how Judaism can inspire deep engagement with social problems around the world.

National Experts

Learn with leaders in the fields of service-learning, Jewish education, and civic engagement.

June 21-25, 2009
University of Maryland,
College Park

Co-sponsored by the Meyerhoff Center for Jewish Studies

Location: Classes and workshops will take place at UMD's Meyerhoff Center for Jewish Studies. Participants will also benefit from the resources of the Washington, DC, area by meeting with local experts, educators, and officials.

Qualifications: If you are interested in Jewish service-learning, the National Educators' Institute is the program for you. You need not have past experience with Jewish service-learning, but you must have a demonstrated commitment to the Jewish community. A background in service is a plus, but not a requirement. Past participants have come from the range of Jewish educational settings and experience levels, including principals, classroom teachers, supplemental and Day school educators, educational agency representatives, and more! An undergraduate degree is required for participation.

Applications: Download the application from www.panim.org/educatorsinstitute.

For more information, please contact Lia Katz,
Director of Jewish Service-Learning, at (301) 770-5070 ext. 202 or LiaK@panim.org

The National Educators' Institute is funded in part by the Howard and Geraldine Polinger Family Foundation

*The $36 DC-Area Educator rate includes most lunches and dinner on Sunday night. Lunch on Monday is not included. The programming generally runs from 8:40 am – 6:00 pm each day. An exact schedule will be distributed to participants in advance of the program.
